Center for the Healing Arts: Embracing a Promising Future

In the world of massage therapy education, change is often a catalyst for growth and innovation. At the Center for the Healing Arts, we're proud to announce some exciting developments that have us on the edge of even more significant and transformative things to come. As we step into the fall of 2023, let's explore these thrilling changes that are shaping the future of our institution.

A Warm Welcome to Transfer Students....

Recent events saw the closure of the Lourdes Institute of Wholistic Studies, leaving many students in search of a new educational home. At the Center for the Healing Arts, we understand the challenges that come with such transitions. That's why we've worked with the Commission on Massage Therapy Accreditation (COMTA) to have a seamless teach-out program approved. This program is tailored to meet the unique needs of transfer students, allowing them to customize their education and complete their required credit hours with us. We're committed to making this transition as smooth as possible, ensuring these students have the support they need to thrive.

Student Spotlight: Kamille Parker

What motivated you to enroll in massage therapy school?

The many benefits massage therapy can have in maternity care. I want to help mothers bring in the new little lives comfortably and most efficiently for them.

What has been the most interesting thing you have learned in the program so far?

Commercial spas have taught me lavender isn't safe for pregnant women but it is. Also how bodywork is more than moving tissue, learning about the body, its tiny systems, and how my touch can improve someone's quality of life.

What is your favorite essential oil to work with?

Lavender! (I know, everyone's favorite)

Are you hearing spa music in your dreams yet?

Yes, I listen to spa water music 24/7
